

Bob and Elizabeth are crossing the Atlantic on their yacht Wind Charger - but when will they land in the Caribbean?

Place your bet for the chance to win your share of the wagers made.

A suggested donation of £1 buys a 10 minute slot, £5 buys an hour, £25 buys a six hour span and £100 buys a whole day.

Facts and Figures

- Wind Charger leaves Puerto Mogan, Gran Canaria on 10th December 2011.
- Sails south to the Cape Verde islands before heading across the Atlantic.
- Chosen destination in the Caribbean is English Harbour, Antigua.
- Wind Charger has been known to get up to speeds of 11 knots (nautical miles per hour). On the last trip the average speed overall was 5 knots.
- Handy Hints: If the trade winds blow consistently, the trip could take just three weeks. If the winds are light, it has been known to take up to four weeks. If the mast falls off it can take up to eight weeks!

So when will they arrive on dry land?

Who knows, you decide!

In aid of Rowdeford Charity Trust to help children with special needs realise their potential as adults through Vocational Training.

How it Works	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• 25% of the wagers taken by Rowdeford Charity Trust will be awarded to the person, or split equally amongst the persons, who have selected the ten minute slot closest to the arrival time.• The time (local) will be noted when Bob, first sets anchor or sets foot in the Caribbean.• The time will be announced on the blog: blog.mailasail.com/windcharger at which point entries close.• Bob and Elizabeth reserve the right to decide the time of arrival and their decision is final.
